Nick Chaveu, Lynwood, Wash.: "After about four years without pigeons, I'm back. I happened to see in the APJ a picture of the Indian Fantail. To see such a beautiful pigeon was a lot at first sight. I hope to see more articles on the Indian Fantail in the Journal. Your magazine is the greatest."

Steven Smith of Coventry, R.I., writes: "I wish to tell you that I look forward to each upcoming issue of the APJ. I am 15 years old and raise Rollers and a few Homers. Articles in the Journal have taught me many things about these breeds and many others. I also benefit much by talking to all members of the Rhode Island Roller Club. Also I would like to hear from some young Roller Fanciers. My address is: Weaver Hill Road, Rt. 2, Coventry, R.I., 02816."

Lyle Caswell of Waterdown, Ont., Canada, writes: "I had disposed of my birds for a year that I spent in travel but I now have them back and need the Pigeon Journal again. I have just been appointed Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Chinese Owl Club and will be working very hard to try and bring this club back to where it was the first year of operating when we had over 30 members. Our membership has dropped off to just about half that number because of too little publicity and lack of information being given out. I hope to correct that. I should not close with telling you how much I enjoy the Journal and the information I get from it could not be had from any other source."

Michelle Saleen, Newark, Calif., writes: "I've enjoyed American Pigeon Journal over the past year, my father has been a long time subscriber to your Journal. The first time he subscribed was in the 1950s and now he has resumed since 1972. My father was forced to retire from work because of all congenital heart disease, so this way he has more time to spend with his birds. He receives 110 copies from the JOJ and, retirement until such as has been over his his buying the superior birds. I've never give up raising and showing pigeons. I am now very interested in I have one pair myself I start out with, I'll be sure for myself how show the rollers really is."
